MINERS OFFER TO STAY ON JOB

Union Proposes To Remain at Work After Contract Expires March 31.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—The United Mine Workers union offered northern Appalachian coal mine operators again today an agreement by which all mines in the Appalachian coal producing area would remain in operation for 30 days after April 1 under the existing contract, providing that any wage increases or improvement in hours later agreed upon shall be made retroactive to that time.

A union representative, who declined to be quoted by name, said later that renewal of the proposal was a result of President Roosevelt's telegram yesterday to the miners and soft coal operators calling for uninterrupted work when the present contract expires March 31.

The President did not set a time limit on the negotiations, and said that any wage adjustments must be in accordance with the wage stabilization act.

The northern operators accepted the President's proposal yesterday, and Edward R. Burke, former Nebraska senator and president of the Southern Coal Producers association, said he would recommend to the association today that it be accepted.

The southern operators, meeting separately, postponed their session today with the miners in order to spend the morning drafting their reply to the President.

The union's offer to the northern operators today was almost identical in language to one made Saturday which the operators rejected. The operators made a counterproposal then to continue negotiations with the provisio that the retroactive date be fixed by the proper governmental agency. This, in turn, the union rejected.

The northern operators went into caucus this morning to reconsider the union proposal.

Donations of livestock for Marion county's unusual war bond auction event Friday at the Marion Union Stock Yards continued to pour in today, Elmer J. Schoenlaub, county war bond chairman, reported.

These will be "gift" animals. When it comes time to auction one of them, the person who agrees to buy the largest amount of war bonds and stamps will receive an animal as a gift.

New gift animals reported today include the following: W. S. Gutnery of Bowling Green township, one shoat; A. J. Loudenslager of Salt Rock township, one lamb; John Ruth of Green Camp township, one shoat; Victor Kries of Richland township, one shoat; Calvin Baldinger of Claridon North, one shoat; F. J. Miss Houck Leaves Marion To Enter Marine Service

Miss Hallie Houck of The Star editorial staff, who enlisted as a private in the U. S. Marine Corps Women's Reserve on Feb. 26, left today for New York City where she will enter Hunter college for a period of indoctrination training.

She received her orders at noon yesterday. Miss Houck's call, giving her only about 24 hours in which to prepare for her departure, came as a surprise and necessitated the cancellation of a number of farewell affairs planned for her.

As a member of the Reserve Miss Houck will not belong to an auxiliary of the Marines but will be a Marine, with the same privileges and obligations as men of corresponding rank. She will take over a Marine's work in the United States, releasing a trained fighting man for combat service abroad.

Following the training period she will see duty at one of the Marine Corps posts or stations within the continental United States, including Washington, D. C., New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco, or at one or more of the large training centers at San Diego, Calif., Quantico, Va., New River, N. C. and Parris Island, S. C.

Miss Houck was graduated from Harding High school in 1927 and for the last 15 years has been a member of The Star editorial staff, handing general reporting assignments. She is the daughter of H. R. Houck of Dayton and has made her home at 841 East Center street. Her address will be Pvt. Hallie E. Houck, U. S. Naval Training School, (W. R.) Hunter College, Bedford Park Blvd. & Navy Ave., Bronx, New York, N. Y.

Madame Chiang Leaves Chicago To Tour West

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 23 — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek left with Chicago today a stirring plea for support of "the four freedoms which epitomize all that we want," coupled with an assertion that "we in China are fighting to help build the mosaic of world civilization."

As she departed on the western half of a transcontinental tour, San Francisco-bound after a four-day visit, the wife of the Chinese generalissimo took with her the affections of midwest millions, from governors to tiny Chinese tots.

Tributes and expressions of esteem for Mme. Chiang were climaxed last night when she spoke before a throng of nearly 27,000 in Chicago's stadium.

700 JAPS DIE IN NEW GUINEA

U. S. and Australian Troops Drive Enemy from Entire Mambare Valley.

By The Associated Press

American and Australian jungle fighters were officially credited today with killing at least 700 Japanese troops, capturing more than 100 prisoners and clearing the enemy from the entire Mambare river valley on the northeast coast of New Guinea.

A communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said many other Japanese were believed to have died of starvation and disease in the swamps where they hid after a disastrous landing attempt on Dec. 13, 1942.

The Mambare valley lies 40 miles north of Buna, scene of the allies' triumphant Papuan peninsula campaign, and 100 miles below the Japanese base at Salamaua which is now the target of a United Nations offensive.

In the skies, allied airmen continued to pound Japan's vast ring of bases above Australia, dropping 2,000-pound bombs on the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, and bombing and machine-gunning the enemy-held towns of Lae, Finschhafen and Madang, in New Guinea.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters also announced that allied scout planes failed to find any trace of a Japanese destroyer which was heavily damaged by bombs Monday off the south coast of New Britain.

On the China war front, Imperial Tokyo headquarters made an unconfirmed claim that Japan's invasion armies had lost only 192 killed while the Chinese lost 10,500 killed, 25,300 captured and 25,500 voluntarily surrendered up to mid-March in Hupeh and northern Kiangsu provinces.

A Japanese communique said that "in these operations, Chinese forces were annihilated in sectors north of Lake Tungting and north of the Yangtze" and asserted that the bases of the 89th Chungking army and the "New Four(th) Communist army" were wiped out in northern Kiangsu.

Rules Governing 3-B Draft Class Are Clarified by Selective Service

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—Who's a 3-B in the draft?

In a recent appeal to the President from a 1-A draft classification, a baker's helper earning $20 a week was reclassified to 3-B.

Nobody contended he was a necessary individual. The 3-B classification was given him simply because he had dependents and his job, although not essential in itself, was in an essential activity.

This case, officials here say, pointed up one of the most widespread misunderstandings by local draft boards of instructions sent them by national headquarters.

Many boards appear to believe that a man with dependents can't be classed 3-B unless he is an essential individual.

But the regulations provide otherwise. Here's the way Selective Service Chief Lewis B. Hershey summed up the rule that has been in effect since last August 15:

"In considering the classification of registrants with dependents, it is not necessary to determine whether or not the registrant is a 'necessary man' but only to determine whether or not he is engaged in an essential activity.

"If he is not, he is classified in class 1-A; if he is, then he is classified in class 3-B."

New Orders Sent

One state headquarters, finding its boards still were making misclassifications, sent out instructions this month putting it this way:

"Any class 3 registrant with dependents * * * who is engaged in a civilian activity necessary to war production or which is supporting

Officials investigating [illegible] quiry disclosed [illegible] Miss Wilma Reed, rather than Mrs. Bevard, and that her father lives at Canton, Ill. [illegible] was about 40 years of age.

The woman had been living at the rooming house operated by Mrs. Sara Angene for the past three weeks with Pvt. Glenn Bevard who is stationed at Camp Millard at Bucyrus, officials stated. Pvt. Bevard is absent without leave from the camp according to a report from there.

Mrs. Angene called the police when she had been unable to rouse anyone in the room all day Monday. She said Pvt. Bevard had come to the room about 11 p. m. Sunday and said that his wife would be home shortly. Later Mrs. Angene said she heard an argument in the room.

Coroner O. R. Kackley stated that death was caused from concussion and strangulation and that she apparently had been struck on the head by a blunt object.

The woman's father, who lives at Canton, Ill., has been contacted by the Red Cross and is expected to arrive Wednesday. Officials said he gave his daughter's name as Miss Wilma Reed rather than Mrs. Bevard. She had been employed as a waitress in a cafe here.

$6,000 FIRE HITS CRAWFORD CO. BARN

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 23—A $6,000 fire at the farm home of George Striker on the Boundary road, southeast of Sulphur Springs in Crawford county, yesterday afternoon destroyed a large barn and 27 head of livestock, including several cows, calves, pigs and sheep.

The barn was built near to the road and earlier in the year fodder was placed around the barn to help shelter animals kept in the barn during the winter months. It is believed that a passing motorist might have flipped a cigaret into the fodder causing it to set fire to the barn.

The livestock destroyed were enclosed in a pen in the barnyard. Twenty-three head of sheep in another pen were released.

Neighbors saved the garage nearby by forming a bucket brigade. The fire was discovered by a passerby.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

FOLLOW YANKS TO NAZI BASES

British Make Night Raid on St. Nazaire After Fortresses Hit Wilhelmshaven.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 23—Squadrons of the RAF's big bombers smashed at the German submarine base at St. Nazaire last night in the wake of a heavy assault on Wilhelmshaven by American Flying Fortresses and Liberators yesterday afternoon.

British Whirlwind fighter-bombers also blasted railway targets in Brittany during the night's operations, which cost the loss of one plane, an air ministry communique said.

The assaults on St. Nazaire and Wilhelmshaven represented a resumption of the allied air offensive against the nests from which Nazi under-water raiders have been striking at vital United Nations supply lines.

Many Times a Target

St. Nazaire has been a repeated target of attacks not only by the RAF but by the United States air forces. The last big raid on the base was carried out by the RAF on the night of Feb. 28, when more than 1,000 tons of bombs were unloaded on the U-boat pens.

The assault on Wilhelmshaven was described as one of the heaviest and most accurate yet delivered by the American fliers, who had attacked the big German naval base twice before. It was directed at shipping installations in a target area only a few hundred feet in diameter. Three bombers failed to return.

MARION HARNESS RACE MEET OKAYED

15-Day Program in June Approved by State.

Marion's 15-day spring harness racing meet received the "go ahead" signal from governing agencies in Columbus yesterday when the state racing commission approved a schedule calling for a meeting at the Marion county fairgrounds track June 10-26.

F. M. Foster, president of the Houghton Sulky Co., and secretary of the Marion Trotting association, said today he had not received official word of the approval. Until he receives word from the commission he will not be able to complete plans for the event which will be the longest harness meeting in Marion history.

Other action before the commission yesterday indicated the Hambletonian stake, the Kentucky Derby of the harness sport, might be moved from the historical track at Goshen, N. Y., to Sep Palin's North Randall track in suburban Cleveland. The announcement of the possible transfer was made to The Associated Press in Columbus by T. A. Billingsley, state racing commissioner.

In yesterday's meeting of the commission permission for racing meets was also granted to the Beulah Park Jockey club for May 1-31 racing at Grove City near Columbus, to Ohio Sports Enterprises Inc. for a meeting July 3-24 at Hamilton. Both of these are for running races. A meeting of this type also will be held at North Randall, in addition to the rich harness program planned.

North Randall's harness program is scheduled for June 29-July 22, immediately following the Marion races.

BRITISH KEEP UP ATTACK ON MARETH LINE

Capture of Town Puts U. S. Troops Within 34 Miles of Sea.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, March 23—American armored forces of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. have seized Maknassy, only 34 miles from the sea, and continued eastward while British forces are continuing successfully their thrust into the Mareth line positions despite heavy fighting, an allied headquarters communique said today.

The bitterly contested advance of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces in southern Tunisia was made despite strong Axis counterattacks, the communique said.

(Moscow radio broadcasts recorded in London at mid-day said Montgomery had driven a wedge into the "best defended part" of the Mareth line, and described the assault on the line as "the most concentrated ever witnessed" with "allied air forces, tanks and self-propelled guns pounding the German positions without respite.")

(Another broadcast from Algiers by CBS, recorded in London, said a wide, outflanking march of 150 miles around Rommel's flank by British units resulted in an advance to 10 miles south of one of his airfields, El Hamma, to his rear and less than 20 miles from Gabes.)

The communique said 1,700 prisoners had been taken by Gen. Montgomery.

After taking Maknassy in a drive into Rommel's flank to the rear of his Mareth positions, the Americans moved onto the high ground east of the railway village, the communique said.

(The Algiers radio said the Americans occupied a ridge three miles beyond Maknassy. This would place them only about 31 miles from the gulf of Gabes by the straightest line.

Site of Nazi Air Base

(El Hamma, reported threatened in the CBS broadcast, is almost due west of Gabes, and is not only the site of one of Rommel's most important air bases which might be useful to United States and British planes busily pounding the fight out of Axis forces, but also a key road junction in the axis chieftain's lines communications system.

(Roads from Gabes on the east, Matmata in the south, Kebili in the west and El Guettar in the northeast already captured by the Americans all converge at El Hamma.

(The little oasis cross roads is near the eastern end of the Chott Djerid salt lake which forms a coastal bottleneck between the Mareth line and the north. Its capture would narrow the gap between the British Eighth army and the Americans to about 30 miles.)

The allied communique said western desert air force fighters attacked a large concentration of enemy tanks and armored cars just south of El Hamma, hitting 32 tanks and destroying at least nine of them.

On other sectors of the front American forces were said by the communique to have extended their patrols east of El Guettar, on a road branching southeast of Gafsa and to the south of Maknassy. Maknassy itself was captured with only slight resistance.

In northern Tunisia, where the British First army has been under persistent attack by the forces of Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim, there were only artillery duels and patrol activity in the Djebel Abiod area, 47 miles west of Bizerte.

Mareth Fighting Heaviest

The heaviest battling, however, was in the Mareth line where the communique said "the enemy is resisting strongly" and attempted "a heavy counterattack" yesterday afternoon which was repulsed.

"Eighth army operations are proceeding satisfactorily and according to plan," it added. "Heavy fighting continues."

(A Morocco radio broadcast, recorded in London by Reuters, said "Hitler has sent an order to his troops in Tunisia to fight to the last man)."

This was the second time Amer-

Brown told U. S. Commissioner Alex T. Howard yesterday he was innocent and was arrested by mistake. The second hearing was granted to give his attorney time to study the Ohio indictment.

Federal bureau of investigation agents said when they arrested Brown last week he was the last member of a gang which took $26,000 from the bank. He has been operating a tourist camp here under the name of H. J. Jordan.

Ginsberg's Maps Draw Criticism in House

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—Representative Sikes (D-Fla.) told the house yesterday David Ginsburg, chief counsel for the office of price administration, had prepared at government expense 500 copies of a post-card size map showing the way to Ginsburg's Washington home.

"I dislike to engage in the David Ginsburg controversy," Sikes said. "The whole business is distasteful. But whether or not Mr. Ginsburg * * * is a draft dodger who would like to be a colonel, he is apparently lacking in the fundamental principles required in a good public official."

(Ginsburg's draft status had been made a matter of comment by a house military affairs subcommittee, which investigated the projected granting of an Army commission to him after he had been deferred from the draft on the ground he was an essential worker.)

Sikes added that he understood Ginsburg got the idea "from his boss, Mr. Leon Henderson who had government workers print several thousand maps to show the way to his country place at Annapolis.

OPA CEILINGS ON HOGS WON'T AFFECT PRODUCTION

Brown Gives Assurance to Farmers on Prices.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—Chairman Smith (D-S.C.) of the senate agriculture committee said yesterday he had been advised by OPA Administrator Prentiss M. Brown he would "not establish ceilings on live hogs which will jeopardize hog production."

Brown, in a letter to the senator, replied to a telegram from J. McGee Bamberg of Bamberg, S. C., who said "it will be a dire calamity" to impose ceilings on hogs and cattle and would cause additional producers to go out of business because of the increasing costs of feed and labor.

"We do not see why hog producers should object to ceilings on live hogs if we establish the maximum price at a level which will permit producers to operate on a profitable basis," Brown said.

"There appears to be as much reason for putting ceilings on live hogs as there is for regulating prices of wholesale and retail cuts. * * *

"We realize that it is essential to achieve the enormous production goals which have been established by the secretary of agriculture, and consequently, if livestock ceilings are established they will be fixed at levels which will provide all efficient producers with an opportunity to conduct their livestock operations on a profitable basis."

Hamilton Granted Larger Meat Supply

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 23—The regional office of price administration today granted packers permission to slaughter and deliver an additional 10,000 pounds of meat to Hamilton, O., for consumption between now and April 1.

Regional Director Birkett L. Williams, acting to alleviate Hamilton's critical meat shortage, based his order on an amendment to the OPA meat restriction order which permits exceptions to quotas where the war effort is being impaired or health and morale are threatened.

Packers allowed to exceed quotas must make the deliveries only to Hamilton, or Paducah, Ky., where an additional 20,000 pounds may be delivered because of critical shortages.

'The govern-[illegible]' Nelson said in his [illegible] already developed [illegible] greatly intensifying its [illegible] task of carrying this [illegible] to American housewives.'

"The fat salvage committee appointed by the soap and glycerine producers, of which Mr. F. A. Countway, president of Lever Bros. Co., is chairman," Mr. Little continued, "will coordinate its activities with the intensified government campaign and with the advertising plans of the incorporated committee to tell housewives all over the country how urgent and essential it is to save every tablespoonful of fat possible and to take it, in a can as soon as collected, to the meat market. Meat dealers to the number of 200,000 have volunteered to collect and pay for waste fats brought to them in this way. Car cards, billboards, radio messages and newspaper advertising will be used to drive home the urgency of the need.

"Over 85 per cent of all glycerine produced is now used for military purposes and the need is increasing. Housewives," Mr. Little stated, have been most cooperative in response to appeals to save waste fats; but government surveys reveal that while six out of ten women are saving fats, only three out of ten have thus far been delivering their waste fat to meat dealer collectors. Possibly this lag in delivery of waste fats to the point of collection, which is alarming in view of the urgent need, is due to confusion concerning the forms and means which should be employed to present the fats to the dealer. Directions are very simple. Housewives simply strain waste fats of every kind into a clean can, and as soon as the can is full, take it without delay to a meat dealer or frozen food locker operator. Any clean can will do."

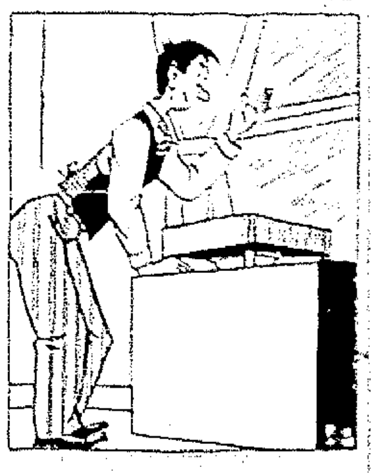
DUCK SOUP FOR FLIER

By The United Press

BROOKS FIELD, Tex. — Held overnight in New York recently by a downpour, a Brooks Field flier tried to wire his wife in San Antonio, Tex., why his return would be delayed. "Sorry, but weather information is censored," the telegraph clerk told him. The idea got through, however, when the following message was received: "Staying overnight—even the ducks are grounded."

GARDENING GUIDE — 2

Start With a Seed Box



Associated Press Features

On the home front, one of 1943's first spring chores is the preparation of a seed starting box.

For amateurs, a handy device for the starting box is a wick feeder.

The box, either purchased [illegible] or constructed at home, is about two feet square and four to six inches deep. In the center of the bottom a hole is bored. Through this a wick is inserted.

The box is set up on pieces of wood, and the end of the wick is placed in a pan of water.

After the flat is filled with soil, it is immersed gently in a tub of water, then drained. When it has stopped dripping it may be set in a dark place until the seeds germinate.

When sprouts appear, the box is placed in the sunniest window available, where there also is warmth and humidity. If the water pan under the box is kept filled, the soil remains at the ideal stage of dampness, without dripping or drying.

Such boxes are used for starting your garden plants early, so that they may be transplanted when the weather is suitable.

Nazi War Machine Still Strong Is Opinion of Experts in Britain

By RELMAN MORIN
AP War Correspondent

LONDON, March 22—The German war machine shows no sign of critical weaknesses despite the batterings of the past four months, authoritative British circles reported today.

These sources, which may not be further identified, said they had made an all over-all survey of the German military, industrial and morale situation as it had been affected by defeats in Russia and the unrelenting British and American bombing.

Each separate line of investigation, they said, led to these same conclusions:

1. Germany shows no signs of cracking.

2. Nazi positions apparently are strong enough to preclude any likelihood of an early end of the war.

3. Hitler's machine will function right up until the day, perhaps even the very hour, when it goes dead.

This information, it was indicated, probably was the basis for Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement the war might last until 1945.

Reseachers said the German army still numbers between 7,500,000 and 8,000,000 men. Total losses in killed, captured and wholly disabled were placed at 5,000,000 since the beginning of the war. These were largely replaced, it was believed, as about 500,000 Germans have been coming of military age every year, and reserves as far back as the 1925 and 1926 classes were called back.

The quality of armed forces probably has declined but not the quantity, it was asserted.

With respect to the effect of the allied air war, the experts said this:

"Even if the entire Krupp works was completely shattered today, it would be between 10 months and a year before the armies would begin to suffer a shortage of munitions."

It was predicted the German army would be well armed, well fed and generally well equipped until the last owing to the great reserves and the funneling off of all types of material not only from Germany itself but also from all of occupied Europe.

They noted a clothing shortage in Germany proper, but expresed doubt the German soldier lacks clothing.

Production Increasing

They said there were indications the output in some branches of manufacturing actually might be increasing—notably production of aircraft. They said 7,500,000 laborers from occupied countries "are not working badly at all."

The experts said it was difficult to estimate the feelings of the average German, much less the morale, of the whole population since the tide of war changed direction. But they declared Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, had thoroughly scared the people with the horrifying picture he has drawn of the Russians.

The whole line is that a Russian invasion would be a fate worse than death for the German people. Therefore the investigators believe the Germans will fight to the death to prevent it.

The over-all conclusions: It's likely to be a long war.

HERSHEY CRITICAL OF DRAFT POLICIES

Declares Some Agencies Set Poor Example.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, told house members yesterday he did not think some government agencies were setting the proper example in the matter of occupational draft deferments of their employes.

Testifying on the general subject of deferments which a military subcommittee is investigating, Hershey flatly replied "no" when Rep. Harness (R-Ind.) asked with respect to furnishing all available men to the armed services:

"Do you think some of these agencies are setting the example?"

On the ground that he did not desire to enter into a public discussion of individual deferment cases he handled, Hershey was given permission to go into details at an executive session.

Harness said 750 draft-age employes of the office of war information had been deferred by local boards and 127 OWI workers had not even been classified for the draft.

"I wonder how that could happen," the Indianan commented.

"I do, too," Hershey replied.

Asked by Chairman Costello (D-Calif.) if many government workers could be replaced by women or men over draft age, Hershey said there was no doubt about it.

The selective service head said approximately 4,000,000 classifications were made monthly by draft boards, and that of 21,000,000 registrants between 18 and 45 years of age, [illegible] were over 38 and 22,000,000 were between 18 and 37.

Save that old Living Room Suite, that fine old Easy Chair— Have it Revitabilt

Honestly, you will never believe what a beautiful suite you may have by just choosing a brand new cover and making over that fine old suite of yours.

That suite for which you paid a great big price ten, fifteen or twenty years ago can be made more lovely than new by having it Revitabilt right in a factory that has been making fine suites for more than 50 years.

This Revitabilt service is no make-shift patch work. Your suite is torn down to the bare wood. The wood is strengthened and exposed parts refinished by expert mechanics.

Then the new cover is sewed on by master upholsterers. You won't recognize the old suite when it comes back to you.

Would you like the names of some of the fine homes in which we have already placed Revitabilt suites? That will convince you. We will be glad to give you the names if you will just stop in.

The folks who have tried this unusual service are mighty glad they did. And so will you be, too.

Sheep Shearing School To Open at LaRue

A sheep shearing school will open Tuesday night at LaRue at 7:30 with Ralph Oberdier, a veteran sheep shearer with 18 years' experience, as the instructor.

The school will be held in Oberder's body shop at the corner of River and Market streets in LaRue.

The purpose of the school is to train farmers to shear their own sheep and to help custom shearers meet the national emergency. Those who have power equipment are urged to bring it to the training center. No charge is to be made for the instruction. The enrollment is in charge of Burdette Hunter, vocational agriculture instructor at LaRue high school.

These People Aren't Kidding

THE HOUSE ways and means committee report recommending passage of the curious tax bill favored by the committee's majority is not intended as a joke. When it says that putting taxpayers on a current basis is wrong because [illegible] a year's taxes, the Democratic members of the committee aren't kidding. They really believe it.

No one is going to be forgiven anything in the line of taxes. They were heavier this year than they were before, and they will be heavier next year than they were this year. This government has gone into the costliest war in history with the largest national debt in history; the decisions on tax policy were made years ago when the peacetime debt was being piled up.

If income taxes were made current, instead of being held over from year to year and made payable on and after the next March 15, the government's revenue would not grow smaller. It would grow larger, even if no change were made in existing tax rates. That would happen because there would be a minimum of loss from default; the money would be collected at the source as it was earned, instead of being collected months later when ability to pay had changed, perhaps for the worse.

Under the Carlson bill, now pending in the house, persons with incomes of more than $20,000 would be prevented from getting any windfall out of the changeover to a current payment basis by being assessed for whichever was larger—their obligation under the existing tax law or their obligation under the reformed law that the minority party in the house has indorsed. There is no question of forgiveness or loss of income or anything else except ordinary common sense in tax collection, except as the political majority in the house ways and means committee and its appointees in the treasury department have chosen to confuse the issue for purposes that are not being declared.

No Partisanship in OWI

THE order from Director Elmer Davis to avoid partisan political activities should help OWI employes to appraise their ticklish position in the government. Some of them apparently have neglected to do this.

For instance, they apparently saw nothing irregular in glorifying President Roosevelt abroad as a personal symbol of American democracy. It must not have occurred to them that in a democracy the leadership changes. Mr. Roosevelt must not be built up to the position where failure of his party to renominate him or failure of the voters to elect him would be construed abroad as the overthrow of his policies. That is not the way things are done in a democracy.

Mr. Davis points out in connection with his non-partisan order that "attacks" on OWI for playing politics may be expected to continue until the presidential election of 1944 is over. It is to be hoped they will continue with less justification than has existed for the "attacks" so far.

Editor White's Little Guy

THE LITTLE GUY is taking it on the chin as usual, Editor William Allen White of Emporia says, but he probably is going to win his battle, because he always has won it. That's a comfort.

The odd thing about the little guy is that he probably gets more pity than he deserves. To be sure, right now he's being treated like an orphan, but even now there are exceptions. For instance, when has the little grocer, or the little butcher, or the little tradesman in general ever been held in higher regard by his customers than he is today? If the big shots who are squeezing him to death by remote control aren't careful, they'll make a martyr of him and he will be commemorated for the ages in a statue on every public square in the United States.

During the late depression it was the little guy as often as not who was able to roll with the punches and stay on his feet. The big guys took a terrific beating just because they were big and muscle-bound. Even the politicians never said anything mean about the little guy; he could classify himself as a forgotten man with a little imagination which made him almost a privileged character.

The little guy, like old man river, he just keeps rollin' along, doing the best he can to keep his nose clean and his principles pure. It's the money he makes and saves that runs the country. In peacetime he's the consumer, and in wartime he's the fellow who gives up consuming and pays taxes and finances the inflationary joy rides so highly favored by the get-rich-quick guys and the git-a-plenty-while-we're-a-gittin' guys—two crowds he never cared for much.

It's a good thing Editor White has time to talk about the little guy, because when all the people who talk about everything else have finished, it's still the little guy who must save their bacon, wherever it happens to be catching fire—at home or abroad. To paraphrase that old saying that originated before politicians abolished poverty, God must have loved the little guys because He made so many of them.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 23—It is [illegible] to say that the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolvers for an internationalized world were surprised and disappointed at the reception their resolution received in the senate. They say so themselves in private.

The plans for hastening a senate declaration on the subject have therefore cooled somewhat, not in the sense that those of this particular school of thought intend to abandon their ideas, but certainly to the extent that a cool, calm, unhurried debate now seems in prospect.

This is especially true since the British foreign minister, Sir Anthony Eden, expressed his views on the subject in executive session with the house foreign affairs and senate foreign relations committees. No one asked Eden straight out if he liked the Ball resolution. That question was primarily in the mind of the most of the senators directing inquiries to him from both sides of the fence.

Also, this is one of the few secret sessions of any character held in Washington in recent weeks from which conflicting accounts have not been related to the press by the participants.

Agree on What Eden Said

All present seemed agreed on what he had said. Anyone must therefore assume as authentic the anonymously announced statement of his position, namely that territorial and boundary questions should be left for settlement after the war, that the four big powers would have to settle these questions then by negotiation; that the ideal of all of us in collective security.

To make the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution conform to this, most of the specific recommendations which have been advocated by Vice President Wallace and Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles would have to be eliminated. The final phrase denouncing territorial aggrandizement would have to be stricken out and, presumably also, the international police force.

While Eden said nothing specifically on the latter point, it is the administration's working basis for internationalized security, and the whole of Eden's tone counselling delay was at variance with it and the entire resolution, which primarily would require an international conference now to settle these and other problems.

The Eden talk, therefore, as represented, seemed to offer the first sight of a common ground upon which opposing factions in the senate might meet. By stripping the resolution of its controversial features, it might be rewritten to express ideals which are common to both sides. As Eden expressed them, they seemed to be acceptable to both.

At least this seems to be about the only thing that can be done with the situation at present in consonance with the primary purpose of winning the war. A knockdown, drag-out fight certainly would serve no good war purpose.

Another sign of settling dust on this subject was the little-noticed announcement from the White House that a committee headed by State Secretary Hull is to meet with the President weekly on post-war food, relief, and rehabilitation problems (most of which Mr. Wallace seems to have been counting as exclusively in his bailiwick).

On the committee are practical men, who know the problems. None is known as a political theorist who might handle food, relief and rehabilitation from the political rather than a realistic feeding, relieving and rehabilitating standpoint. By this observation, I mean to contrast them with Mr. Wallace's advisors, led by Milo Perkins.

Practical-Minded Group

In the group are Welles, Red Cross Chairman Davis, Dr. Isaiah Bowman, of Johns Hopkins university, Myron Taylor, the President's representative to the Vatican, and Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, special assistance to Hull.

The promise of weekly meetings by the President with such a group puts at least temporary emphasis on the other foot.

If the feeding is to be left in the hands of such a committee, it is reasonable to expect that they will not spoon out political doctrines of new world theories along with the soup. On the rehabilitation side, it must also be accepted that they would rebuild what they find necessary and not, for instance, rebuild the whole world under a Keynes economic theory which holds that the spending of money by governments is good whether they have the money or not, or whether anyone is really in need.

Post-War Unity Move

Senate Resolution a Significant Development.

By JOHN GROVER
Washington Correspondent

FROM the standpoint of its possibilities, the bi-partisan senate resolution calling for a permanent United Nations concord on post-war action is the most significant development on the capital scene in months.

It has a tremendous potential as an effective aid to the military prosecution of the war. President Wilson's 14-Points contributed no less than armed might to breaking the resistance of the Central Powers in 1918.

Indeed, Germany sought an armistice on the basis of the 14 Points. Her formal request for cessation of hostilities asked that peace negotiations be conducted with the 14 Points as the frame work of the discussions.

The Atlantic Charter, a similar executive pronouncement of post-war aims, has so far failed to make such an impression in the enemy camp. Too clearly the world remembers that President Wilson's idealistic plans were scuttled by the vindictive Clemenceau in the Peace of Versailles, and by the failure of the U. S. senate to authorize American membership in the League of Nations.

Strengthens Executive

Sen. Harold H. Burton (R-Ohio), co-sponsor of the senate resolution, sees the resolution as capable of "immeasurably strengthening the President's hand in the conduct of the war."

He points out that the world has learned that the U. S. executive branch and the senate, which must approve treaties, do not necessarily work hand in glove. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge and his dissidents proved that when the League of Nations plan was carved to pieces on the senate floor.

Any executive pronouncement of post-war procedure would be taken with a grain of historical salt, so long as the threat of adverse senate action exists. However, Sen. Burton supports the thought that an advance senate commitment to joint action would lay the ghost of the fiasco that followed the Armistice.

Armed with this senate commitment, the Executive could really throw unified weight of U. S. influence into the balance, conceivably as effectively as Wilson's 14 Points impressed the enemy in the last war.

Aside from its potentially great value as a war weapon, sponsors of the resolution have carefully handled its introduction from the standpoint of practical politics.

Here are the mechanics of the thing, from senate sources: It was agreed that a concrete start on postwar planning now is necessary. Note that none of the four bi-partisan sponsors are members of the senate foreign relations committee. That was deliberate. The disclaimer of Sen. Tom Connally (D-Texas) that the resolution "in its present form" has White House or administration backing was also carefully planted.

If the resolution encounters unexpectedly tough sledding, it will not constitute a repudiation of the administration or the committee and leaves their hands free for further action.

Await Reaction

Its sponsors do not expect its adoption as its stands. One of its sponsors said its probable course will be a nap in committee, while senate and public reaction jells. It is expected to be quiescent in a committee pigeonhole for two or three weeks.

Then "it will very likely be modified," according to one of its sponsors, to conform to the national reaction it evokes.

One thing is certain: The resolution was crystallization of a spontaneous senate movement on both sides of the aisle. It is strictly bi-partisan and is not an attempt to get the senate to approve something conceived by the Executive. Senator Burton says "it's an effort at pre-armistice co-operation to avoid the errors after 1918, when Wilson tried to carry the ball alone and was tossed for a long loss.

Another thing is equally sure: Unless the revised version of the resolution seems certain to command more than a two-thirds majority, it will never see daylight again. Whatever emerges from the committee must show the world that the senate is solidly behind it.

Preliminary reaction in the capital indicates the resolution is generally considered an adult and statesmanlike approach to a problem that must be resolved in an adult and statesmanlike fashion.

Today and Tomorrow

Churchill Praised for Clear Statement of Steps Necessary for Post-War Planning.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, March 23—It has been the fashion to say that while Mr. Churchill is a great leader in war, he is not interested in and has not much aptitude for the constructive tasks of the postwar days. After his Sunday broadcast, no one will say that again. Indeed they will ask themselves how Mr. Churchill could rise from a serious illness and make the most comprehensive, the clearest and the most salient address yet delivered anywhere on postwar problems.

We must find the answer in the fact that there is no way of separating the conduct of the war from the settlement and the reconstruction. The qualities and the experience which have made Mr. Churchill so great a leader in war have brought him to the truest understanding of what is necessary and what is possible in the making of peace.

The portion of the speech which dealt with international affairs must have our immediate attention. Here Mr. Churchill asked that the British Commonwealth, Soviet Russia and the United States "should immediately begin to confer upon the future world organization," postponing discussion of the details of the precise machinery and argument about frontiers in order to concentrate at the outset upon their "high permanent interests."

We recognize and define these high permanent interests in the fact that the great powers separately were unable to avert the war, that separately none of them could win the war, that if they separate again when the war is over, there is no slightest hope that they can make an enduring peace.

Mr. Churchill's approach agrees exactly with that of the resolution of the four senators, which now has behind it a rising tide of American opinion. The British view today, and the American view as represented by the senators' resolution, is that an organization must be brought into being before blueprints and plans of action can be usefully adopted, that agreement to work together for peace is infinitely more important than agreement on any particular detail of the peace.

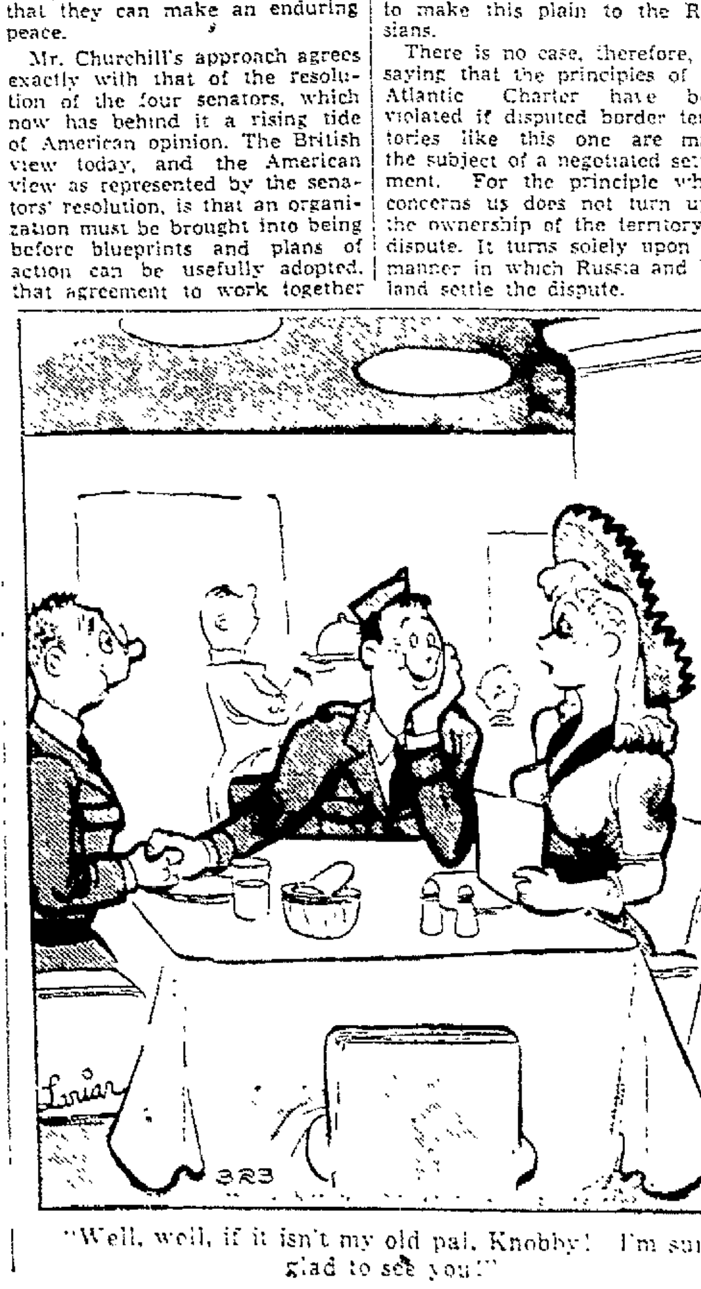
One of the immediate things we shall have to learn is to avoid becoming entangled in false and unredeemable commitments. There is, for example, a most dangerous confusion of opinion centering around the Atlantic Charter.

I am referring to the idea that the Atlantic Charter guarantees to every nation its prewar frontiers. There is nothing in the Atlantic Charter which gives such a guaranty; in fact the charter contemplates the probability of territorial changes, because it provides that they should take place in "accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned."

The United States, therefore, cannot afford to be placed in the position of having to underwrite every disputed prewar frontier. Our whole obligation under the Atlantic Charter consists in using our influence to see that disputes over frontiers are not settled by force but by negotiation and consent.

The most important case is the eastern frontier of Poland. Our position has to be that of the impartial friend of Poland and Russia alike, and we must appear not as a partisan advocate of either country but as conciliators seeking an enduring settlement by consent. We cannot stand guard on the Polish frontier and so we must not mislead the Poles into thinking we shall. And we cannot hope to have a settlement in Europe which holds the United Nations permanently together if Russia fixes the Polish frontier by force alone, and it is our duty to make this plain to the Russians.

There is no case, therefore, for saying that the principles of the Atlantic Charter have been violated if disputed border territories like this one are made the subject of a negotiated settlement. For the principle which concerns us does not turn upon the ownership of the territory in dispute. It turns solely upon the manner in which Russia and Poland settle the dispute.



"Well, well, if it isn't my old pal, Knobby! I'm sure glad to see you!"

Wives Should Take It Ea[illegible] Because We Know a Lady [illegible] Almost Had Her Face Sma[illegible]

By DAMON RUNYON

IN reading novels of family life in th[illegible] in England long years [illegible] have noticed that the wife always [illegible] her husband [illegible] and in private [illegible] or Mr. Nuffield [illegible] name meant to the [illegible] ply she used the "Mister."

It denotes respect. I think a return to the old custom would be a good idea [illegible] that familiarity of wives toward their husbands, especially in public, may be [illegible] the matter with matrimony. I know a [illegible] man who recently barely missed h[illegible] chin with a sharp left hook because he [illegible] annoyed beyond endurance by her insisting on calling him "Honey-Bunny" in the [illegible] of others.

This gentleman has been a fine pro[illegible] his spouse for many years. He is an [illegible] home-loving man, who never gave [illegible] dame the eye in all his married life [illegible] considerable dignity. He rightly felt [illegible] was entitled if only by his years and [illegible] hair to respect from his spouse and [illegible] admonished her time and again not [illegible] that "Honey-Bunny" stuff on him.

It affronted his sense of convention [illegible] it made him look like a sucker. Some [illegible] witnesses of his untoward violence toward [illegible] wife were shocked, but it is worthy of [illegible] one man stood and cheered him for five [illegible] it developing later that this fellow's wife [illegible] years been calling him "Popsy."

I DO not think wives should call their [illegible] bands "Pop," "Papa," "Daddy," or [illegible] "Father" in public, though they may be joint possessors of passels of offspring. T[illegible] titles help to make a man feel old. 'Fa[illegible] is all right for the kids, but if a wife w[illegible] to call her husband anything, let it be [illegible] first name, even if it is Marmaduke. I [illegible] am sure all husbands will agree with [illegible] "Mister" would be much better.

Of course I do not hold with the pra[illegible] of husbands calling their wives pet names [illegible] public, either, though I sometimes re[illegible] the diplomacy therein. I think wives [illegible] be addressed as "Abigail," or "Katherine," "Emma," or whatever their first name [illegible] be, except in cases where "Hey, you," suff[illegible] We must have mutual respect between [illegible] band and wife at all times to preserve the [illegible] stitution of matrimony on a sound basis.

I THINK many wives are too fresh with [illegible] husbands. They think nothing of disc[illegible] some of the most intimate details of his [illegible] life. They will tell about his snoring, the [illegible] he mislaid his upper plate, his long under[illegible] and the way he puts on his trousers. I cons[illegible] these revelations most indelicate and [illegible] they may account for the increasing bu[illegible] in matrimony.

A wife would sizzle if her husband rel[illegible] in mixed company some of her home ha[illegible] but she either never realizes that she is [illegible] barrassing him or is indifferent to his me[illegible] suffering when she starts gabbing abo[illegible] I think there ought to be a law.

Getting back to the form of address b[illegible] wife to her husband, I find consolation in [illegible] thought that after the war most wives [illegible] be calling their lords and masters "Capt[illegible] or "Major," or maybe "Colonel," which [illegible] certainly be more respectful than something "Sweetie-Pie," but which in some cases [illegible] contain one element of danger to dignity. AS UNREST IN FRANCE reaches its highest peak since the nation's collapse in 1940, Germany is rushing last-minute adjustments to her system of defense against the coming Allied invasion of the European continent. This map shows the three areas in which German work is being concentrated at the moment in anticipation of attack. In addition, they hurried defense works along the south coast of France as soon as they occupied that section. Severe restrictions have been placed on ship movements at Stavanger, Norway; all French civilians have been ordered from coastal areas by March 30, and, in the Balkans, a defense army of non-Germanic troops under Nazi officers has been created.

the war effort must (the "must" was underscored) be classified in 3-B."

It further pointed out that this didn't mean just bomber plants, shipyards and the like, but activities "which provide food, clothing, shelter, health, safety and other requisites of our daily life."

The 3-A classification, it noted, is for those with dependents but not engaged in essential activities.

"The distinction is important because, in reclassifying class 3 registrants * * * the cases of those in 3-A must be considered and exhausted before the cases of those in 3-B can be taken up," the notice said.

Continuing the discussion of reclassifications, the instructions cited as "one typical recent case" that of "a newspaper reporter who was reclassified from 3-A to [illegible]-A."

"He was unquestionably entitled to a 3-B classification because the publication of newspapers has been certified as an activity contributing to the war effort under occupational bulletin No. 27," the instructions said.

"Had he been reclassified from 3-A to 3-B in the first instance, as he should have been, he would not have been called for induction for some time to come."

Some Exceptions

There is an exception from the ruling that any man with dependents in an essential activity should be in 3-B, and this is men whose jobs were listed February 2 as "nondeferrable" regardless of dependents. Elevator operators, for example, are nondeferrable.

Men who are individually essential go into class 2—it's 2-A if their activity is considered essential to support of the war effort and 2-B if their activity is rated essential to war production.

As to men in class 3-A and those in class 3-B, the order of [illegible] according to General Hershey is as follows:

1. Single men who have collateral dependents but who are not engaged in an essential activity (class 3-A).
2. Single men who have collateral dependents and who are engaged in an essential activity (class 3-B).
3. Men with wives only, and who are not engaged in an essential activity (class 3-A).
4. Men with wives only, but who are engaged in an essential activity (class 3-B).
5. Men with wives and children or children alone, but who are not engaged in an essential activity (class 3-A).
6. Men with wives and children or children alone who are engaged in an essential activity (class 3-B).

Hershey, summarizing his views on the importance of the job in [illegible] deferment, declared it would be better to lower physical standards again and take men without dependents rather than take [illegible] individuals and "dis[illegible] production of war [illegible]

OPA Boss Warns of Trouble Ahead from Black Market

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown's disclosure that court actions were started against 1,025 individuals in a drive against illegal operators in meat between January 15 and March 11, gives us fair warning that one of the grave problems which we may have to face shortly on our home front will be that scourge of countries in the war-zone—the black market.

We are just beginning to hear about this devil's institution here in America because it fattens on scarcities of commodities, and there's no place for it in times of plenty. The moment there is a serious shortage of any prime necessity, however—meat, for instance—the war profiteers come into action, like wattle-necked vultures which have been waiting for the wounded man to fall.

Wartime operators of black markets are, of course, in the category of those who are working against their country—give them any name you like. They damage national morale by withholding supplies from the regular markets, thereby imposing suffering on the masses. They foster inflation by encouraging thoughtless and selfish people with money to pay exorbitant prices. They deprive the national treasury of bond investments which are needed to finance the war effort.

Most Countries Have Them

During my recent trip through the war zones I found black markets operating in most countries despite vigorous efforts to exterminate the despicable rats. The only nation which appears to have turned the full heat on these people is Germany. There they chop off their heads—and a jolly good job, too. However, the democracies haven't gone that far.

England has put many of the black market dealers out of business though, by handing out fierce fines and terms of imprisonment. As long as a year ago a warehouse company was fined the equivalent of $800,000 on the charge of selling goods in excess of the legal quotas. Prison terms, which are meted out freely, run to a maximum of fourteen years. You'd think that sort of punishment would drive the war profiteers to cover, but some of them still hang on.

The black market of course flourishes where distress is greatest. You can get high prices from people who really are in need—if they have the money.

Poor old Belgium is a case in hand. There butter is reported as selling at $5.50 a pound, sugar at $1.25 a pound, and flour at $1.60 a pound. Men's shoes are $56 a pair and women's are $40. So it goes.

I found a rather similar situation in Chungking, where inflation is rife, and prices of many things are fantastic. A hundred-watt electric bulb, for instance, costs $12.50 in American money, and that's a fair gauge of other similar goods.

Luxuries Come High

When it comes to luxuries like Scotch whisky, the Chinese capital pays through the nose. A bottle of this liquor was $100, American money, when I was there. Gasoline, which is like molten pearls, cost $20 American a gallon in the black market, although the government price was $8.

India, too, has a situation which has been causing concern. There is a scarcity of wheat, due to several reasons. One of these is hoarding for profit.

As a result many observers have been fearful that the shortage might become dangerously acute about April, which is the in-between period for Indian crops. That might create a grave crisis in a country where the majority of the 400,000,000 people literally are always hungry, even in the best of times. However, the government has ordered supplies of wheat from Canada and Australia and latest reports are that officials believe the emergency is well in hand.

The moral of the experiences abroad seems to be that the way to handle the black market is to go after it right at the start and soak it with every weapon the law provides. Fines don't do much good, because the profits of the market are great, but long terms of imprisonment at least put the operator out of commission for the duration of his incarceration.

BOMBERS

heard by The Associated Press, claimed that seven bombers were shot down in the raid on Wilhelmshaven. It said that "in particular the population suffered losses and damage was caused to buildings.")

"The results were good," a communique stated tersely.

"The target was packed with hits and they were concentrated, with none short or long of the target," said Lieut. Roger Caukin of Los Angeles. He was bombardier of the "Chuck Wagon," a Fortress piloted by Lieut. Charles Cramer of Akron, O.

Defense Strengthened

Wilhelmshaven has strengthened its anti-aircraft defenses and it sent up a dense smoke barrage, returning fliers reported. The docks lay under heavy camouflage but Caukin declared "I don't see how we could have done anything but destroy all that was under that large mass of camouflage."

The German fighter interception was cautious, mindful of the punishment meted out by the unescorted bomber fleet that bombed Vegesack last Thursday. A number of the enemy aircraft were destroyed by yesterday's bomber crews, the communique announced.

The RAF sent its bombers out in a daylight attack on Maasluis, the second in a week, and RAF fighters machine-gunned other objectives in Holland and northern France.

RAF Mosquitoes also downed two Junkers 88's during a patrol over the Bay of Biscay.

German planes visited England to drop incendiary bombs. Some casualties and damage were acknowledged and one raider was reported shot down.

PRESIDENT DRINKS MILK

WASHINGTON, March 23—President Roosevelt now drinks a glass of milk instead of coffee for breakfast, Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference today. "The President has given up drinking coffee," the first lady said, adding that he feels much better and is very proud of himself because of this change. He occasionally might take an after-dinner cup, she acknowledged.

SLAIN IN CLEVELAND

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., March 23 — Slain in gangland fashion, the bullet-riddled body of Louis Velotta, 35, was found today on the sidewalk on Murray Hill road, the center of prohibition era feuds. The victim, identified by Detective Orley May as a former bootlegger, racketeer and petty thief on parole from the Ohio penitentiary, was shot nine times.

WELFARE AGENCY MEASURE VOTED

House Passes Bill To Permit Consolidation.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—The Ohio house of representatives voted last night to permit consolidation of county welfare activities, despite a Republican member's warning the bill smacked of politics.

"This bill," asserted Rep. Ralph A. Siferd of Auglaize county, "offers possibilities for the most damnable political organization imaginable."

Earlier, Rep. C. B. McRae (R-Summit) told the house a merger of county welfare functions would promote economy and efficiency and that legislation of the type had been suggested by Gov. Bricker.

Siferd, on the other hand, contended professional social workers were sponsoring McRae's bill, and that it would permit "gestapos, czars and dictators to take charge of our unfortunates."

Rep. George B. Marshall (R-Franklin) said the bill would help to strengthen local governments and make them more independent of the state and federal governments.

The measure would make possible the consolidation of such activities as poor relief, aid to the blind, aid to dependent children, and—the sponsors said—numerous overlapping bureaus.

It was sent to the senate by a bare majority of 69 votes. Fifty-two members voted against it.

The senate approved, and messaged to the house, a bill prohibiting minors under 18 from drinking beer, or persons under 21 from consuming liquor, on the premises of a permit holder.

The senate also completed enactment of legislation increasing the salary of village council members. The pay, now $2 a meeting, would be hiked to $3, $4 and $5, depending on the size of the village's budget.

The house sent to the governor a bill enabling retired school teachers and public employes to return to work. Then it adjourn[ed] without reaching a vote on another measure allowing old age pensioners to do casual work without losing their pensions.

SOLDIERS FIND USE FOR GASOLINE HEATED IRON

Marion Lieutenant Seeks Two for North African Service.

A Marion soldier in North Africa today sent his parents an unusual request. He and his fellow officers in one of the armored divisions have grown tired of mussed-up uniforms and want a gasoline-heated iron to press their clothing.

The request came from First Lieut. Richard Clevenger, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Clevenger of 738 South Prospect street and husband of Mrs. Ruth Clevenger of Congress street. He said he and a group of other officers have tried several means of keeping their uniforms pressed but without success. Gasoline is available, and memories of gasoline irons in common use 20 to 30 years ago led to the request.

Lieut. Clevenger even obtained an Army permit to have the irons sent to Africa if they can be located. He estimated two of them would be needed to supply the group of officers with his units. His father has asked that anyone knowing where such irons are available contact him at his home.

LABOR DRAFT BACKING URGED

Supporters of Manpower Measure Seek Approval of President and Workers.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23 — The pros and cons of post-war planning vied with varied income issues for capital consideration today while advocates of manpower draft legislation looked to labor and the President for support.

Prime Minister Churchill's four-year plan for British post-war economy and social security was seen as aiming at the same approximate goals sought for this country by the national resources planning board while Churchill's Sunday radio broadcast lacked the details of the voluminous NRPB report submitted to congress March 10, the two patterns for projecting a more abundant post-war life were strikingly similar. NRPB Director Charles W. Eliot said he was delighted by the resemblance, adding that "since it (Churchill's plan) was proposed by the epitome of a British tory, I hope that people will get over thinking that our plan is radical."

Challenges Planners

On Capitol Hill, advocates of immediate post-war planning were challenged by both Senators LaFollete (Prog-Wis) and Representative Sol Bloom (D-NY). The former, a member of the senate foreign relations committee which tomorrow considers various post-war proposals, said a resolution to set up a United Nations system for promoting international peace—as suggested by four senators—is "an extreme manifestation of futility," and added that "it isn't binding on anyone, including its authors." Bloom, who is chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, described it as "an example of the disjointed and scattered thinking that is going on both within and without congress."

Meanwhile, immediate developments appeared in the wage, salary and farm price fights.

President John L. Lewis of the United Mine workers had dual notice from the government that it planned to retreat on the wage stabilization front. The war labor board announced its rejection of a labor petition to lift the 15 per cent cost-of-living allowance and President Roosevelt backed it up with messages to Lewis and the operators that their soft coal dispute "must be settled like any other dispute."

At the same time, the administration made a final and admittedly futile attempt to throw off a rider repealing the President's $25,000 salary limitation order from a measure raising the national debt ceiling—where it was purposely placed to avoid a veto. Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky agreed to take up the legislation in the senate, asserted the repealer had no place in a debt limit bill, but conceded there was little chance of shaking it off.

Farm Price Battle

At the third point on the stabilization line, a two-front congressional assault on the administration's farm price structure gathered momentum with prospects of an early showdown with the White House. A house-approved bill to include all labor costs in computing farm price ceilings and a senate-passed measure prohibiting deductions of government benefit payments in determining maximum allowable prices set the stage. Proponents predicted final legislature approval of both proposals before the week-end recess and asserted an effort would be made to override any presidential veto of either bill.

In the manpower-draft scene, sponsors of the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill sought to meet CIO objections to the measure, after being told by AFL President William Green that it calls for "involuntary servitude." CIO President Philip Murray was to testify today, and while his opposition was expected to parallel Green's, advocates held that both could be won over. Simultaneously, manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt indicated that the administration is becoming more receptive to the compulsory work law principle by his declaration that such legislation "is inevitable."

DEFERRED FARMERS MUST STAY ON JOB

Goble Warns Registrants Who Try Evasion.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, warned registrants today that men deferred because of farm work must remain on the job—making them eligible for 2-C or 3-C classifications — or face summons from their local boards.

Men in the 2-C classification are deferred because they are "regularly engaged in an agricultural occupation or an agricultural endeavor essential to the war effort." Persons in 3-C are so classified because of dependency and agricultural work.

"According to information coming into state headquarters," Col. Goble said in a statement, "local boards in the state have already received information to the effect that many men who have been placed in class 2-C and 3-C are not devoting their full time to agricultural pursuits, but are spending just enough time on the farm to claim agricultural deferment. Class 2-C is for single men needed on farms and 3-C is for men needed on farms and who also have dependents.

"The regulations are specific and clearly state that deferments are granted by the local board for the convenience of the government—not for the convenience of the registrant. When the local board receives information which convinces it that a registrant is not contributing his maximum effort on the farm front, it then becomes its duty to determine that he would be more essential to the war effort in armed forces.

"Citizens of the community usually report to the local board any registrant on deferment whom they personally know to be evading full responsibility. Anonymous reports receive no consideration, but those which are written and signed are immediately investigated, and all information is regarded as strictly confidential by the local board."

AXIS MAPS PLANS FOR POST-WAR WORLD

Justice and Peace Offer Comes from Tokyo.

By The Associated Press

The Berlin and Tokyo radios announced with enthusiasm last night completion of conferences in Tokyo by representatives of Germany, Japan and Italy at which, it was said, complete agreement had been reached on "creation of a new world order based on justice and guaranteeing eternal world peace."

The broadcasts were recorded by The Associated Press.

While Premier Hideki Tojo was reported to have participated in the talks, the absence of any special envoys from the European axis powers made it appear little more than routine diplomatic exchange actually had taken place.

At the same time axis and neutral sources indicated the diplomatic pot was boiling in Europe, where German and Italian committees were working out details of a German draft on Italy's manpower and Premier Mussolini was reported to have summoned Vichy chief-of-government Pierre Laval to a conference on strained relation between their two countries.

A Domei report of the Tokyo meeting said:

"Observers contrasted the close harmony of the axis aims for creation of a new world order and annihilation of their mutual foes, the United States and Great Britain, with the vagueness of the war aims and constant clashing of interest between the United States and Britain."

The Berlin radio reported German and Italian committees had agreed "Italy will send to the reich a big contingent of skilled workers for particularly important" German war factories, and declared "a large number" of Italian farm laborers would be sent to the reich this summer.

In return, the broadcast said, Germany has sent "considerable quantities of agricultural products, particularly potatoes," to Italy this winter, and has agreed to the return to Italy of workers in secondary plants shut down by Germany's new total mobilization plan.

Reports to neutral Bern, not confirmed elsewhere, declared Mussolini had sought his meeting with Laval in anticipation that the substitution of large number of Italian troops for Germans in France, as the latter were drawn off into the Russian struggle, might precipitate trouble between the two countries.

Meantime dispatches to Swiss papers continued to indicate seething unrest and open revolt in France as Hitler's government attempted to enforce its draft of French labor.

Surprise Air Raid Test Routs New York Wardens

NEW YORK, March 23 — Sirens wailed before dawn today, routing civilian protection workers from their beds for an air raid test at 4:55 o'clock (EWT).

An estimated 75,000 white-helmeted wardens, several thousand police and others mobilized for the 35-minute drill. Mayor LaGuardia, who sped from his home to city hall as the confidential, preliminary signal was given at 4:25 a. m., declared the surprise test was, on the whole successful.

The test caught the vast majority of the city's millions asleep—and many remained so throughout.

Meat Sale Permits Required

County Agricultural Board Issues Reminder About Rule Effective April 1.

The Marion County Agricultural War Board today issued a reminder that every butcher or dealer in meat, dealer in livestock or auctioneer selling livestock must have a permit, issued by the war board, by April 1.

Farmers giving away or selling any portion of the meat they butcher must have a permit and collect point rationing stamps, under new regulations. However, farmers doing occasional butchering need not get their permits until just before they butcher.

To clarify public understanding of the new setup, the war board has arranged a meeting for Thursday night at 7:30 slow time in the Legion Dugout on South High street. Speakers will cover various phases of the permit program and answer questions.

The war board today listed some of the provisions of the program as follows:

Farmers who raise livestock for sale, or purchase livestock for feeding, provided they keep it on the farm 30 days, do not have to have any permit. They are required to keep a record of purchases and sales so that at any time a government official checking the black market problem may be able to trace any livestock bought or sold.

A farmer does not need a permit to butcher livestock for his own use. If he sells any part of livestock butchered or gives it away he must have a permit and collect the point rationing stamps.

It is not required that a farmer doing any occasional butchering of that sort secure a permit before April 1. He can secure a permit of that kind just before the butchering. It must be secured before the meat is transferred.

A man who is doing custom butchering and has no interest in the meat butchered is not required to secure a permit.

The responsibility is entirely on the owner of the meat.

7 U. S. Latin American Envoys Advance in Rank

WASHINGTON, March 23 — President Roosevelt conferred the top rank of ambassador today on United States envoys to seven Latin American countries.

Confirmation of his nominees by the senate will mean that the United States will be represented in all the countries south of its borders by this highest type of diplomatic agents, rather than ministers.

Legations in Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, the Dominican Republic and Haiti will become embassies. All these nations, in turn, will raise the ranks of their ministers to the United States to ambassadors.

Rush for Tickets Looms as Plans are Completed for Tourney Finals

Available 4,500 Seats To Be Sold On Basis of First Come First Served.

BY FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., March 23 — The battles for Ohio's Class A and Class B high school basketball championships here Saturday may be a bit tame when compared with the fight for tickets staged by customers trying to get into Columbus auditorium for the contests.

Seating capacity is 4,500, as compared with 10,000 at the state fairgrounds coliseum where most of the former meets were held.

Besides H. R. Townsend, state high school athletic commissioner, decreed that no tickets should go on sale until 10 A. M. Saturday.

Coach J. R. Brammer of Tipp City declared at yesterday's meeting of coaches to make first round pairings that his town planned to send a big delegation to the games and that he wanted to buy 300 reserved tickets.

Vetoes Action

Henry Taylor, Ohio State university's director of ticket sales who is acting as manager of the tournament, favored giving the fans from home towns of the qualifiers first chance at the tickets, but Townsend vetoed such action.

"We are playing the games on slow time," Townsend said, "while all the towns represented are on fast time. The fans will have plenty of time to get here by 10 a. m. Saturday to get their tickets. There are only 1,000 reserved seats, and we can't hand all of them out to followers of the competing teams."

Martins Ferry, Canton McKinley, Yorkville, Waynesburg, and Middle Point are more than 125 miles from Columbus, Lima is 90 miles, Tipp City about 70, and Newark more than 40. Fans from those spots expecting to be here when the ticket sale opens must get an early start if they observe the 35-mile speed limit enroute.

All the coaches at the meeting expressed a desire to reserve a block of tickets for their fans, but the question finally was left on a "first come-first served basis."

Townsend said each school in the tournament would receive 17 passes, 15 for the team and coaches, and two for the principal, while 60 more would go to members of the district high school boards.

Crack of the Week

Carl Longsteth, captain of the Middle Point team of Van Wert county, winner of 26 straight games, is credited with the "crack of the week." There are only 25 boys in the Middle Point school, and last Saturday after the Pointers snuffed out undefeated Webster township in the regional semi-finals, Longsteth said:

"Well, that's a victory for each boy in the school. Let's win tonight for the coach."

Middle Point did it, beating Wharton in the finals for 26 in a row.

"Next Saturday afternoon," Longsteth then declared, "we'll win one for the girls. And the championship—aw, we'll win that one for the whole school."

Middle Point, despite its long victory strain, will not be favored too highly over Yorkville, which it meets in the opener. The Yorks have won 30 of 36 tilts, losing five to Class A team, and their scoring average is terrific. In the other Class B first round tilt, Waynesburg meets Tipp City, the former boasting 25 wins and two defeats against Tipp City's Newark's Wildcats, winners of the title Class A in 1936 and 1938, and with a record of 24-2, meet Martins Ferry's high-scoring and unbeaten team in the last of the afternoon contests. Martins Ferry, with 24 wins in a row, held the title in 1941. Both of Newark's losses were to Dover.

The other Class A game pits Canton McKinley against Lima Central, and this marks Canton's 11th bid for the championship which the Bulldogs have never won. Three times McKinley reached the finals, but it always has lost, the closest being in 1931 when the Bulldogs dropped a one-point overtime decision to Portsmouth's Trojans.

CLEVELAND GRIDDER MIGHT BE ELIGIBLE FOR O. S. U. FOOTBALL

Buckeye Coach Certain Only Six of 1942 Team Will Be Back.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 23—Les Horvath of Cleveland, star halfback of last season, might become eligible for anoher football campaign at Ohio State university, even though he has used up his three years of eligibility under the customary rules.

This was one of the interesting bits of information on the scrambled collegiate athletic situation explained last night by Paul Brown, the Buckeye coach who was guest of honor at the midwinter meeting of the Ohio State alumni club of Cleveland.

Horvath is in the dental college at Ohio State and hence is not subject to military service until his course is completed. Should he go into the Army or Navy he would still continue his dental education, and under the relaxed regulations of the Western conference would be eligible to play football again.

"Should we have him again, Horvath probably will have to do most of the passing, punting and ball carrying," Brown remarked. "Maybe he'll even have to help mow the grass."

Under ordinary conditions, Brown said he would have had back 30 of the 42 member of his 1942 squad. Instead, he is reasonably certain of having only six: Don Steinberg and Cecil Souders, ends; Jack Dugger, center; Bob Jabusch, guard; Gordon Appleby, center, and Paul Elby, a blocking back.

TRIBE GETS SET FOR 1ST PRACTICE GAME

Pitchers, Batting Order Listed by Manager Boudreau.

By The Associated Press

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 23—Manager Lou Boudreau today named three young pitchers to divide the mound duties Saturday when the Cleveland Indians oppose the semi-pro Lafayette Red Sox in the first practice game of the season.

Mike Naymick will work the first three innings, followed by Pete Center and Paul Calvert.

The Tribe pilot also announced the batting order for Saturday's initial contest. Oris Hockett will lead off and will be in center field. Boudreau will bat second, Roy Cullenbine third and Ken Keltner in the cleanup spot. Hank Edwards, playing left field in place of holdout Jeff Heath, will be fifth and Buddy Rosar sixth, followed by Otto Denning and Ray Mack.

In Saturday's game Cullenbine wil start in right field and Denning at first base, but in about the fifth inning Roy will be moved to the initial sack.

Boudreau made it clear that Cullenbine's continued tenure as a first base candidate will depend on Hank Edwards' draft status and the success the Indians have in digging up another outfielder or first sacker.

Boudreau arranged to hold the first outdoor session today.

Anti-Freeze Test Urged by ODT; Some Harmful

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., March 23—Simple tests, devised by the U. S. Bureau of Standards, will show whether you are using a harmful anti-freeze solution in your automobile, the regional Office of Defense Transportation says.

These tests were announced following reports that injurious anti-freeze mixtures containing inorganic salts and petroleum distillates are being sold in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Advising motorists and truck operators to use only products plainly marked as having alcohol bases, the ODT recommends the following tests, to be made in the order given:

For distilled oils—add a small amount of mixture from the radiator to a glass of water. If the mixture floats noticeably on the water, the anti-freeze contains kerosene, fuel oil, or naptha.

For salt solutions—drain a cup of radiator mixture into a clear tin can and boil until all liquid has evaporated. If a substantial white or crystalline coating remains, the solution contains salt.

Council Hits Obstacle in Plans for Financing Hospital Work

Legal Advisors Say City Can't Use Bond Issue Money on Project: New Councilman Chosen.

[illegible] legislation before [illegible] requesting $35,000 for [illegible] for a new [illegible] and for remodeling [illegible] were halted [illegible] session Monday [illegible] City Solicitor [illegible] Wilhelm informed [illegible] Snare and council[illegible] could not be [illegible] $200,000 bond issue [illegible] Marion citizens a [illegible] ago.

[illegible] requested by Mayor [illegible] tentatively planned for [illegible] council last night, [illegible] the council approve [illegible] notes in the amount [illegible] anticipation of bonds. [illegible] $20,000 was to be [illegible] purchase of equipment [illegible] new addition and [illegible] $15,000 for remodeling [illegible] present structure.

[illegible] caucus discussion [illegible] problem,' Mayor [illegible] a letter received [illegible] ago from the of[illegible] of inspection, a [illegible] state auditor's of[illegible] letter was quoted [illegible] the attorney general's [illegible] the opinion that [illegible] use part of the bond [illegible] for use in equipping [illegible] hospital addition.

Doubts Opinion

[illegible] Wilhelm contended that the letter was not an opinion of the Attorney General Paul Herbert, but that of a subordinate. He said if the mayor would obtain a written statement from the attorney general's office he still would not believe council could legally use any of the bond issue money. However, he said he would go along with it.

Continuing, Mr. Wilhelm said council could not spend the bond issue money on a temporary addition because the ballot placed before Marion voters a year ago last November called for: (1) a fire proof addition, (2) remodeling existing facilities and (3) equipment for the new addition. He said all three of these were intended as one project and could not legally be split up. That is, one could not be contracted for unless all three were to be handled at about the same time.

Mr. Wilhelm said he and his aid, Attorney R. N. Kelly, worked on the legislation since last Friday but were unable to find a legal loophole through which council could proceed. He said he was conscious of the urgent need for expanded hospital facilities, but, under the circumstances, could not advise council to pass the proposed legislation.

He warned that persons in the city, irked by the long dispute over the building of the hospital, might file an injunction to further complicate the situation if council acted to use the voted funds.

Possible New Issue

Councilmen Bachelder, Simmons and Slack all suggested that a reasonable means to obtain the hospital be found. It was suggested that a new bond issue in the amount of $35,000 could be floated and still keep within the city's bond indebtedness limit of $359,343. At present over $300,000 is outstanding in city bonds. Regulations governing the operation of a municipality permit bond indebtedness to one per cent of the city's tax valuation. However, where federal funds are being supplied this limit may be extended to as much as five per cent.

Atending the caucus session to show blue print plans for the temporary addition planned for the hospital was Charles Oborn of Marion, who is an associate architect of the T. D. McLaughlin & Associates architectural firm of Lima.

The hospital problem was not discussed during the regular open session of council.

City Clerk Mayme Gorton read a letter of resignation from John D. Jones, fifth ward councilman who was recently appointed to fill the unexpired term of Urban F. Zachman on the county board of commissioners. It was then unanimously accepted.

Council President Robert H. Stief then commended Mr. Jones for his work as fifth ward representative.

Addressing Mr. Jones, who was seated in the council gallery, Councilman Slack added, "It is with regret that we accept your resignation. You have shown a deep interest in work of the council and the commissioners will benefit where we will lose."

New Councilman

Mr. Slack made a motion that Mr. Jones be replaced by Phillip H. Rea of 640 Irey avenue. The motion was seconded by Councilman Selis and was unanimously accepted by the other council members.

Mr. Rea was sworn into office by Solicitor Wilhelm and was immediately seated at the council table. Council President Stief reported Mr. Rea would serve on the same committees Mr. Jones served.

Mr. Rea is married and is the father of four children, including two sons in the armed service. They are Second Lieut. Robert Rea, stationed with the quartermaster corps at Ft. Sill, Okla.; Corp. Tech. John Rea, now in officers candidate school at Ft. Belvoire, Va.; Ruth Ann, a senior at Harding High school; and Jimmie, a seventh grade student at Central Junior High school. Mr. Rea is employed in the engineering department at the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Council unanimously approved the appointment by Mayor Snare of U. A. Nystrom as a member of the city park commission. Named to a three-year term beginning at once and ending Dec. 31, 1945, Mr. Nystrom succeeds Irving L. Duit, chairman of the board, whose commission recently expired. Mr. Nystrom, whose home is at 441 Hane avenue, is secretary of the Fairfield Engineering Co.

Petit Larceny Measure

Next was introduced a resolution to provide a penalty for for petit larceny wherein fines resulting from convictions would revert to the city, instead of the state. This was passed unanimously and becomes effective immediately. Speaking briefly on the measure, Solicitor Wilhelm pointed out several recent municipal court cases in which heavy fines had to be turned to the state because the city was without an ordinance.

The ordinance, affecting thefts in which the value is less than $35 provides for a fine of not more than $200 and imprisonment of not more than 30 days, or both.

Councilmen reported streets and alleys in need of repair in various parts of the city. They were: Bradford street at Willow, Thompson street between Lee street and last alley on Thompson street running west, Prospect street from Mill street to West Columbia street, Park boulevard in front of the Farm Bureau offices, Windsor street between Carner and Marion avenues, Brown avenue between Waterloo and Latourette streets, alleys between Summit street and Hane avenue, and Hane avenue and Grand avenue.

Sidewalks Reported

Sidewalks in need of repair on West Center street, South State street, and Church street were also reported.

The street and sidewalk complaints were ordered to be turned over to Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell.

Councilman Slack asked that council order Mr. Caldwell to come before council at its next meeting to report on streets and alleys in need of repair. No action was taken on this however.

Catch basins on South Main street between Center and Church streets which protrude above the street level also were reported. Minor cave-ins on West Fairground street resulting from installation of a water main to the Scioto Ordnance Plant also were reported and were referred to the city engineer's office for correction.

Give a Lot—And Help U. S. Is Plea To Land Owners

Declaring that land owners who contribute their vacant lots to the pool of acres being made available to Marion Victory Gardeners are helping "plow under the Axis," the Marion garden committee today renewed its appeal for lots which are "reasonably free from trees, shade and underbrush."

"In the final analysis," said a committee member "the entire success of this venture in our community depends on the patriotic response of land owners. Dozens of Marion people whose own yards afford no opportunity for Victory Gardening have registered with us and indicated that they are ready to go "all out" in supplying seeds and labor for their gardens. Farmers in this vicinity are cooperating in the venture by furnishing labor and equipment for necessary plowing and discing, and there is a strong probability that facilities for spraying will be available. But these efforts will be for naught unless we find at least 50 lots whose owners will find sincere satisfaction in seeing their idle land turned into food-producing acreage. Owners who contribute lots will be doing lots to help their neighbors and their country overcome the serious food-shortage. We're counting on them, and we are confident they will come through."

Lot owners wishing to cooperate can list their lot with the committee by calling 2277.

Red Cross Maps Marion County Disaster Preparedness Program

First Institute for Explaining Plans Scheduled for March 25: Area Official To Speak.

Steps to ready Marion county residents for disasters resulting from natural causes, excluding war calamities or enemy action, are being made under the direction of the Marion county chapter of the American Red Cross.

Ralph Carhart, chairman of the local chapter, announced today that Mrs. Madeline Blalock, disaster representative for the eastern area of the United States, will come here to conduct the first institute scheduled for 8 p. m. March 25, in east hall of Harding High school.

Besides providing an intensive review of the Red Cross plan of disaster preparedness for members of the local committee, consideration will be given to details of cooperation between Red Cross activity and programs under the direction of civilian defense and public health and welfare departments, James E. Frew, co-chairman of chapter's disaster preparedness committee, said.

Major Causes

"Floods, fires and wind storms account for more than 80 per cent of all natural disasters, Chairman Frew said. Referring to records of the American Red Cross Mr. Frew added, "At least one disaster every week is to be expected in the 15 states east of the Mississippi river from Pennsylvania to the gulf states. This is the area covered by the eastern division of the national organization

"Ohio is one of the states frequently visited by catastrophe. In the last 20 years, 57 disasters have affected the state. In maintaining its program the Red Cross has expended $6,564,000 in aiding Ohioans in critical periods," he concluded.

No Duplication

Under terms of an agreement made with the offices of defense and civilian defense, public health and welfare services there will be no duplication in the education [illegible] under the sponsorship of the local chapter.

The local disaster preparedness committee headed by Mr. Frew and Homer D. Cole is made up of nine subcommittees to handle the major functions of the disaster service. The committees and chairmen of each follow: registration, Mrs. Jane Alexander; survey, Harold W. Hall; rescue, O. R. Matlock; medical aid, Dr. F. L. Thomas; food, C. F. Zachman; shelter, E. N. Hardin County Marsh Farmers Shift Crops

KENTON, March 23—Hardin county's onion and potato growers plan to shift to field crops requiring less hand labor as they staggered under multiple labor blows.

The latest loss came last week when Michigan growers offered local laborers $5 per day (as compared to the $4 daily wage being paid here) to do similar work in the Michigan onion fields. Better housing also was offered and several Alger and McGuffey families at once took advantage of the proposal.

A major farming company near McGuffey said it previously had lost 50 per cent of its available labor to war plants, and a similar loss to industry was noted among other farmers.

Houses in the Scioto and Hog Creek marsh areas, where all of the district's onions and many of its potatoes are raised, are filled with families of men who are working in war industries in nearby Lima. This has resulted in a housing shortage which prevents importation of additional labor, farm leaders asserted. No new houses can be erected because of government priorities.

New Member Seated On War Manpower Group

Ross A. Donley, who recently succeeded M. N. Brady as service director for the U. S. Rubber Co. at the Scioto Ordnance Plant, was seated as a member of the Marion area war manpower committee at its regular meeting Monday night in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Mr. Donley took Mr. Brady's place as a member of the committee, which deals with war manpower problems for Marion, Hardin and Wyandot counties.

KENTON — First Lieutenant Ralph A. Printz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Printz of Ridgeway, has arrived back in the United States for treatment of malaria fever after having served with an army unit in mopping-up activities on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons. He is in a hospital in California.

KENTON — Theodore E. Grey, Kenton, has been promoted to sergeant in the Army Air Corps at the Antilles Air Task Force in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

HARDING SENIOR PLAY IS SELECTED

WHEAT PRICES DROP AT CLOSE OF SESSION

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 23—Selling of wheat futures increased toward the close today and prices declined to the lowest levels of the session. Buying support was apathetic and milling demand had virtually dried up. Most traders seemed content to await congressional developments on measures planned to increase prices of farm products.

GIRL SCOUT LEADER CLASSES SCHEDULED

First Will Be Held Wednesday Night.

The first class in the group leadership course in Girl Scouting will be held Wednesday night from 7:30 until 9:30 at the Girl Scout office in the Citizens building.

Sixteen women attended the introduction meeting Friday night at the office. Four were former Girl Scouts and five had previously worked as leaders with Girl Scouts or other youth organizations. The meeting was in charge of Miss Edith Treat, executive secretary of the council, Mrs. J. E. Frew, volunteer trainer, and Mrs. Ernest O. Smith, commissioner.

The leadership course will include a two-hour class each week for eight weeks. The course, although intended primarily for persons interested in working with Girl Scout troops as leaders or assistant leaders, is open to any woman interested in Scouting. Miss Treat and Mrs. Frew will act as instructors for the course.

BUCYRUS MAN TALKS TO MARION LIONS CLUB

Operator of Chinchilla Ranch on Luncheon Program.

Boyd Sawyer, owner and operator of a chinchilla ranch at Bucyrus, spoke in a meeting of the Lions club Monday noon at Hotel Harding.

His ranch is one of the largest of the 40 in the United States and Canada. He owns 192 animals and he stated that there are only approximately 16,000 chichillas on this continent, the only place they are known to exist. They are now extinct in the Andes mountains of South America where they originated. He gave the history of the animals and told the group how they are raised. When asked how much a chinchilla is worth he said that he recently sold a pair for $3,200.

D. T. Mills, superintendent of the county schools, spoke briefly about the need for more Boy Scout troops in the community.

George Alber, Mac Melz and Forest Cox, members of the Rotary club bowling team, J. T. Carliss, John McAndrew and Hugh Hay were guests. Next week's meeting will be Monday night at Hotel Harding.

ATTENDANCE AWARD IN SIGHT FOR COMPANY H

May Be Won at Drill Meeting Tonight.

If 50 men attend the drill meeting of Co. H tonight, the company will receive the award for highest attendance in the second regiment for March, Capt. Carl F. Ebert announced today.

At the school last night plans were outlined for the company's training period at Camp Zaleski in July with special emphasis on map work and maneuvers. An outdoor drill at Crystal Lake park has been scheduled for April 4 when practical map work will be done.

Sgt. Charles Harmon, who conducted the class in intelligence and map work last night, was highly commended by Major George E. Biggs of the Fifth Service Command, who inspected the company last week, on his knowledge of maps. Major Biggs also complimented Pfc. Frank Furnace on map reading and Cpl. Donald Wertman on combat principles.

V. F. W. Post To Elect Officers Wednesday

Veterans Post No. 3313, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold election of officers Wednesday night. A fish supper will be served before the meeting. The officers will be installed April 14.

A complimentary letter has been received from district commander James Shuff of Dunkirk in connection with the post's part in raising $150,000 to be given to the government for the purchase of trainer planes. Norvall Foreman, post commander, received a citation for the post from Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury in connection with the drive. It was countersigned by Robert T. Merrill, commander-in-chief of the V. F. W. It will be framed and hung in the post room.

A final vote on changing the name of the post will be held Monday night.

BUYING GIVES MARKET LIFT

Better War News and Halt in Selling Helps Stock Prices.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—Buying in steels, rubbers, rails and specialties gave today's stock market another fair-sized lift.

Brokers attributed the recovery tinge partly to the better Tunisian war news and the belief that recent drying up of selling meant the list was in shape to resume the upswing.

Railway bonds improved and commodities were relatively steady.

Stocks touching 1943 peaks included U. S. Rubber, Goodyear and Willys-Overland. In front were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Packard and Western Union.

AFRICA

rean troops had reached Maknassy.

It was announced Jan. 30 that a band of United States troops raided the town and captured 80 German prisoners after a taunting note had been dropped over the American lines by the Germans asking "why won't the Americans come out and fight?" The troops withdrew after the sortie.

On a straight line to the coast, Maknassy is only some 40 miles from water.

Allied air forces put on an offensive yesterday which surpassed even those of the previous day when the greatest air force ever used by the allies in North Africa was employed.

Besides smashing at armored concentrations south of El Hamma, allied planes made continuous attacks between Mareth and Kettena, 10 miles to the northwest, and south of Zarat, five miles northeast of Mareth, smashing at troops, forts and guns in a pace-making drive for the ground troops attacking the Mareth line near the coast.

Other air fleets carried cargoes of bombs for Mezzouna, important airfield only 12 miles east of Maknassy and another airfield at Sfax up the coast.

In the continuing assault against axis sealanes, a troopship in a convoy was hit and left aflame and other hits were scored on another ship and an escort vessel. Docks at Palermo, supply terminal in Sicily, also were bombed.

Altogether 23 enemy planes were shot down yesterday, the communique said, six of them during the raid on Palermo, nine during the sweeps over the battle zone, and eight in a fierce dogfight over the convoy. Seven allied planes were lost.

(The Italian communique said that the Palermo raid was made by about a score of four-motored American bombers and that 38 persons were killed and 184 injured. Acknowledging some damage was done, the communique claimed that five of the planes were shot down. It also reported another attack on Naples.

(Allied strategy appeared directed at breaking axis forces into two or three pockets. Montgomery, pursuing the methods he used at El Alamein in Egypt, was attempting a smash through near the coast, which would nip off the inland end of the Mareth line. His flanking arm was attempting to get behind the whole line, while the Americans threatened to wedge in to the coast farther north.

(A British radio correspondent's broadcast said the British flanking movement had been expected by Rommel and had been met 10 miles south of El Hamma by strongly prepared positions defended by minefields, anti-tank ditches and concentrations of troops and machines.

(Montgomery's coastal drive, the correspondent added, met with a deep and difficult Wadi defended by a complicated trench system and machinegun posts which had to be mopped up. However this obstacle was reported crossed, and the British were said now to be attacking a strongly held ridge.

(The German communique claimed that the allies were repulsed "at several points" in a violent defensive battle in south and central Tunisia.

(A broadcast from Morocco, recorded by Reuters in London, said Hitler had ordered his forces in Tunisia to resist to the last man.)

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELL GARRISON

IF MARY had thrown on a screen two contrasting pictures—one of Olma, a poised woman "to the manor born" handling a critical social emergency with skill, and the other of her only as a flirtatious nymph, taking advantage of Georges' romance with her to keep the situation [illegible], she could not have succeeded better [illegible] plan to bring Georges to his senses and make him realize Olma's charm.

I was wondering how much longer she would keep up the performance as Noel, at Mary's cavalier dismissal and Olma's smiling gesture, went to Olma.

My unspoken question was answered almost as soon as I had asked, for Mary threw up her head at Olma's reference to John Hayes, and turned to Georges with a manner which definitely dismissed him.

"Darling, do you mind if I [illegible] you those million questions some other time?" she cooed. "I'm still dying with curiosity to know all the things behind that marvelous Father Christmas disguise of yours. You don't care if I take time off to laugh again, do you?" she asked with a high, excited giggle, "but you can tell me everything some other time."

Affront to Veritzen

"I've simply got to get hold of Papa Veritzen," she said, "and find out, if possible, what he thinks of the understudy who played Steve's part tonight. And that will be some fishing expedition, let me tell you, for my father-in-law is a wary old trout."

She did not seem to care whether or not Philip Veritzen heard her, and I saw first his involuntary frown, then an amused smile.

"But keep the home fires burning for me, Sweetheart," Mary caroled. "I'll be back. Oh 'Lina, you can talk to two men at once, I know. Take care of Georges for me too till I come back, there's a good scout."

But I knew, as she turned away, that she had just uttered her exit cue on that scene, and her exit cue on Georges as well, for I was sure he would never forget the revulsion which had seized him at her apparently cheap, flirtatious attempt to keep [illegible] attention [illegible] upon herself.

Future Danger

[illegible] thing might [illegible] again. If he should [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Olma [illegible] [illegible] evident affection towards her.

Mary moved away from Georges with the same nod dancing step with which she had approached him, and with a perfunctory "I'll be waiting for you," Georges moved as if half dazed to where Olma was talking with apparent animation to Noel.

Appeals to Madge

She gave him a casual welcome [illegible], and I knew that [illegible] could assuage the sorry situation.

Mary came and with a swift [illegible] movement pulled me from my chair, as Dicky rose to greet her.

"C'mon out to the [illegible]," she said [illegible]. "You're in on this. Please go on ahead Uncle Dicky, darling, and [illegible] of you can placate the men. He doesn't look quite in the mood for questions."

I understood her ruse when, as Dicky stepped ahead of us, she spoke prison fashion from the side of her mouth, as she paused under the pretext of adjusting the belt of her unbecoming gown.

"How'm I doin', Auntie Madge?" she asked.

YOUR HEALTH

Tests Show Oranges Vary in Vitamin Content

Oranges are valuable from the dietitian's standpoint for a number of reasons. In the first place, they are palatable and increase the appetite. In the second place, they furnish sugar in a very easily assimilable form. In other words, they make for a quick nutritional pick-up. In the third place, they have a considerable amount of roughage and therefore tend to regulate the bowels.

But mostly they are valued because of their vitamin C content. Vitamin C is absolutely necessary for human health. Lack of it results in scurvy. The best sources of vitamin C are the citrus fruits—oranges, lemons and grapefruit. Vitamin C is present in a large number of foods, but since it is destroyed, or nearly completely destroyed, by cooking, it disappears before most foods are eaten. This is where oranges come in handy, because they are very seldom exposed to the heat of cookery.

Contribute Quantities of Vitamin C

It has been estimated that oranges contribute about 624 million grams of vitamin C to the human dietary annually. If it is assumed that 130 million people in the United States have a daily requirement of 75 milligrams of vitamin C, oranges will furnish about 17½ per cent of the needed supply.

However, it must not be assumed that oranges have an even content of vitamin C. Different oranges have different amounts, and oranges from the same locality differ in their vitamin C content at different times of the year.

It is also true that oranges from one part of the country are regularly higher in vitamin C than those from others.

In a careful research from the laboratories of the E. L. Patch Company, oranges were purchased from a number of different sources—local retail stores, some of which were members of large chain-store organizations and some of which were under private management; some were obtained from street hucksters and an attempt was made to select fully ripe, plump, juicy fruit. All of these oranges were tested as to their vitamin C content.

The influence of seasons on the vitamin C content of oranges showed considerable variation. Oranges purchased in March were found to yield 75 milligrams of vitamin C—which, as we have said above, is the daily human requirement—in 128 c.c. of the juice, while oranges purchased in September sometimes required as much as 250 c.c. of juice.

Winter oranges as purchased in an average grocery store are slightly more than one-half heavier than oranges available in the fall seasons.

No especial difference was found between California and Florida oranges, so this ancient and smoldering warfare can be left to itself.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, March 24

IT IS probable that much ingenuity and shrewdness may be required to turn the tide of doubt and difficulty into channels both constructive and happy. Keen analysis of obscure or critical situations should translate worries and woes into fortunate directions. Shun bad temper, and enmity, and be ready to make concessions.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year to try their good nature in difficult situations. Keep to reality and facts rather than unkindly and unsympathetic tactics. A gracious and magnetic personality may win where strife, intrigue and duplicity would fail. Subdue peevish or peculiar urges and both romantic and financial status may bring advantages and happiness of enduring worth.

A child born on this day may have conflicting tendencies, with sound and sane ideas, but complexioned by vague, mysterious or peculiar urges. It will have charm, sympathy and cordiality.
